Description

Switzerland is generally regarded as one of the World's leading sites for arbitration proceedings.

The membership of the Swiss Arbitration Association (ASA) is graced by many of the world's best known arbitration practitioners. The Statistical Report of the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) has repeatedly ranked Switzerland first for place of arbitration, origin of arbitrators and applicable law.

The ASA Bulletin is the official quarterly journal of this prestigious association. Since its inception in 1983 the Bulletin has carved a unique niche with its focus on arbitration case law and practice worldwide as well as its judicious selection of scholarly and practical writing in the field. Its regular contents include:

- Articles
- Leading cases of the Swiss Federal Supreme Court
- Leading cases of other Swiss Courts
- Selected landmark cases from foreign jurisdictions worldwide
- Arbitral awards and orders under various auspices including ICC, ICSID and the Swiss Chambers of Commerce ("Swiss Rules")
- Notices of publications and reviews

Each case and article is usually published in its original language with a comprehensive head note in English, French and German.

Asian Dispute Review

Volume 21, 4 Issues

ISSN: 1469-6487

Online subscription only, rate upon request

Description

Asian Dispute Review is a quarterly journal, sponsored by Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre, the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (East Asia Branch), the Hong Kong Institute of Arbitrators and the Hong Kong Mediation Council. Each edition of the journal generally comprises 8 papers, a news section and a book review, all with a focus on arbitration, mediation and other forms of ADR. The content is written in a style easily understood by lay readers, with substantive law content limited unless it aids the understanding of the arbitration/ADR content.

Issues of Asian Dispute Review are available early January, April, July and October of each quarter. The journal's readers are mostly lawyers, legal consultants, arbitrators, mediators and other ADR neutrals, academics and people from all trades and professions who are interested in private dispute resolution. The journal's geographical distribution ranges from Hong Kong and other areas of Asia to Europe and America. The circulation is 7,500 copies worldwide.

Description

Published in collaboration with the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC), the Asian International Arbitration Journal (AIAJ) aims to be the thought leader on issues in international commercial arbitration in the Asia-Pacific region.

Despite Asia becoming one of the world's fastest growing regions for international arbitration, there are few journals that provide practitioners with the requisite depth of knowledge on international arbitration in Asia.

Each issue of the Asian International Arbitration Journal contains a variety of comprehensive and thought provoking articles. Articles in the Asian International Arbitration Journal will also provide detailed analytical commentaries on international arbitration developments and emerging trends in the region.

Published twice yearly since 2005, this cutting edge, practical publication will provide insights into latest institutional developments and regulatory changes, as well as updates on recent case law, legislative enactments and arbitral awards in Asia.

Description

The BCDR International Review will help both international arbitration practitioners and academics to identify and better understand trends, developments and procedural issues relating to arbitration in the Arab world or as seen from an Arab perspective.

This biannual journal, written in both English and Arabic, is intended to help increase awareness of alternative dispute resolution mechanisms and arbitration in the Arab world, and to provide the outside world with a perspective on related developments occurring in the region. In addition, it provides a forum for practitioners and academics from and for the Arab world to comment on international arbitration in general.

Each issue will feature:

Thought-provoking articles by leading practitioners and academics (all with English abstracts)

Insightful case law from the region (also with English abstracts),

Important legislative and procedural documents

Each issue will focus on a specific theme or topic that is both timely and of particular interest to the Arab region.

Upcoming theme's include:

The Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards in the Arab States of the Gulf, Women's Voices in International Arbitration.

Subscribers will receive a complete and comprehensive insight into the Arab or international practice of a specific topic.

About the editor

The editor of the BCDR International Arbitration Review, Professor Nassib G Ziadé, is a prominent figure in the world of international arbitration, with a wealth of experience in publishing. He is former deputy secretary-general of the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID) and editor of the ICSID Review, former director of the Dubai International Arbitration Centre (DIAC) and current CEO of the Bahrain Chamber of Dispute Resolution (BCDR-AAA). He is assisted by an advisory board of experts, consisting of recognized members of the international arbitration community.

Belgian Review of Arbitration b-Arbitra

Volume 2019, 2 Issues

ISSN: 2593-0877

Online subscription only, rate upon request

Description

b-Arbitra, the Belgian journal for arbitration, is an initiative of CEPANI, the Belgian Center of Arbitration and Mediation. The biannual journal is unique in that it welcomes contributions in English, as well as in Belgium's official languages Dutch, French and German. Each of these articles is accompanied by a summary in the English language.

b-Arbitra subscribes to the objective of CEPANI to promote edifying debate and in-depth research in the field of arbitration, to provide a valuable source of pertinent information to lawyers involved in arbitration, and to bring new developments to policy makers' attention in order to further the quality of arbitration law and practice. It promotes dialogue on novel issues in the field of arbitration and aims to provide a dynamic forum for the exchange of information on a European scale, in light of the increasing number of cross-border disputes and the internationalization of arbitration.

Description

The Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem is a quarterly journal established in 2003 covering national and international arbitration as practiced in Brazil or seen from a Brazilian or South American perspective. The journal is aimed at practitioners and academics working in the field of arbitration.

Leading articles by internationally renowned specialists ensure that you stay up to date with trends, developments, cases and procedural issues relating to arbitration in Brazil and South America. Each issue of Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem covers both national and international doctrine through articles, selected arbitral jurisprudence, annotated cases, landmark decisions, recent developments, book reviews and a “review of the reviews”. Easy to use, each issue is introduced through concise ‘Carta do Editor’ introductions which give a quick insight into the contents of the issue whilst expert indexes make it easy to locate the content you require.

The journal is headed by Director João Bosco Lee, Editor-in-Chief Flavia Foz Mange and Deputy Editor-in-Chief Ricardo de Carvalho Aprigliano, who together lead an Editorial Committee of international arbitrators. Linked to the CBAr (Comitê Brasileiro de Arbitragem), all articles are written by domestic and international experts with English abstracts provided for all articles and English headnotes to all case law.

Key benefits of the new Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem include:

- Expert guidance to the information you need – the editorial board consists of a team of national and international arbitrators who edit the journal to provide the information and commentary you need
- Quickly discover the latest developments – “Carta do Editor” introduction allows a at a glance insight into the contents of an issue and the significance of the selections made
- Easy to access – English abstracts of all articles and English headnotes to all case law will make it easy to navigate Brazilian content. Expert indexes facilitate quick searches
- Develop deep insight – leading articles by internationally renowned specialists will provide commentary on the important developments
- Comprehensive case law and legislation coverage ensures that you are fully up to date with changes in national and international arbitration as practised in Brazil or seen form a Brazilian or South American perspective
- Gain full understanding with the interesting and novel section on the historical implications of selected key awards and court cases
- Join in with the discussion – linked to the the CBAr (Comitê Brasileiro de Arbitragem),

Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem is a tool for disseminating information and to generate discussion amongst the legal community from the perspective of one of the most important arbitral jurisdictions.

Revista Brasileira de Arbitragem is the essential journal for the study of arbitration in Brazil. Providing up to date coverage of cases and procedural issues, backed by expert commentary that identifies and explains the latest trends to ensure full understanding.

World Trade & Arbitration Materials

Volume 31, 6 Issues

ISSN: 1022-6583

Print subscription rate: € 812 / $ 1,080 / £ 596

Online subscription rate upon request

Description

This journal publishes the texts of all of the most important current documents relating to international trade not readily available elsewhere. It also includes a selection of essential current documents relating to international arbitration as a means of settling international business disputes. The journal provides arbitral awards, news of adhesion to international conventions, court decisions, statutes, reports from official authorities, arbitration rules, and news of arbitration centres and associations.

Practitioners in arbitration and trade must have timely access to current information in those fields. But the rapid and continual growth in practical and academic research in these areas makes staying current nearly impossible.

World Trade and Arbitration Materials meets this vital need of practitioners. Subjects covered include:

- anti-dumping and unfair trade practices decisions
- pending legislation and new statutes
- policy statements, position papers, proposals, and reports concerning trade negotiations
- new arbitration rules and news of arbitration centres
- reports of trade dispute settlement panels
- arbitral awards and court decisions

Its coverage and currency make World Trade and Arbitration Materials an indispensable tool for those working in the fields of arbitration and trade, especially those involved in research in these areas. It complements other Kluwer Law International information products in creating a complete set of resources dealing with arbitration and trade.

Description

World Competition examines all aspects of competition policy from, primarily, a legal perspective, but also from an economic point of view. By taking both disciplines into account, it uniquely enables readers to understand competition issues. Its currency and multi-disciplinary approach make it essential reading for practitioners and academics in the field.

Membership of the Advisory and Editorial Boards extends to the most highly regarded academics, practitioners, and members of the judiciary, as well as top ranking competition law officials. In addition to featuring top-quality authors, the journal

- contains detailed legal analysis complemented by an economic viewpoint for a multi-disciplinary approach
- has been the forum of heated discussions on several topics, including collective dominance, and the implementation of a system of international competition
- is now considered essential reading for practitioners and academics

The articles included in every edition are of the highest quality, evidence of the fact that World Competition has become hugely important in the field of global antitrust. Its aim has always been to cover all aspects – every angle – of competition and antitrust.

Young Writer's Award

Every year World Competition runs World Competition Young Writer's Award for the best article published by a young writer (under the age of 35) in the field of Competition and State aid law. The winning article will be chosen from the articles submitted to World Competition by eligible candidates. The winner of the World Competition Young Writer's Award will be granted a free subscription to World Competition for one year and a 1000-Euro voucher to be spent on Kluwer's publications.

Description

The mission of the European Business Law Review is to provide a forum for analysis and discussion of business law, including European Union law and the laws of the Member States and other European countries, as well as legal frameworks and issues in international and comparative contexts. The Review moves freely over the boundaries that divide the law, and covers business law, broadly defined, in public or private law, domestic, European or international law. Our topics of interest include commercial, financial, corporate, private and regulatory laws with a broadly business dimension. The Review offers current, authoritative scholarship on a wide range of issues and developments, featuring contributors providing an international as well as a European perspective. The Review is an invaluable source of current scholarship, information, practical analysis, and expert guidance for all practising lawyers, advisers, and scholars dealing with European business law on a regular basis.

The Review has over 25 years established the highest scholarly standards. It distinguishes itself as open-minded, embracing interests that appeal to the scholarly, practitioner and policy-making spheres. It practices strict routines of peer review. The Review imposes no word limit on submissions, subject to the appropriateness of the word length to the subject under discussion.

Description

The increase in cross-border corporate activity has meant that developments in European company and securities law continue to pose a challenge to law firms and corporations. Staying current in this dynamic and rapidly-changing area of practice can be no easy task. To help you manage this challenge Kluwer Law International publishes European Company Law (ECL), a legal information service that provides you with an authoritative overview of current developments.

European Company Law has been designed to be the ideal working tool for all corporate lawyers with a European practice. Published bi-monthly and available in print and online, you'll find it a time saving way of keeping up-to-date with all the issues affecting European company law. ECL's Editorial Board has a thorough understanding of the needs of the legal practitioner and all articles have been written to follow the SCIP principle: Scientific, Concise, Informative and Practical. Also, where relevant, articles include hyperlinks to websites where more information about the topic can be downloaded.

With 6 issues a year, European Company Law is the ideal companion to keep you up-to-date with developments.

ECL's Main Editor is Steef M. Bartman, a practicing lawyer in Amsterdam and emeritus professor of Company Law at Leiden University, The Netherlands. The Editorial Board is comprised of leading academics from various European law schools, assisted by the Board's secretaries professor Cornelis de Groot from Leiden University, the Netherlands, and professor Thomas Papadopoulos from the University of Cyprus, Cyprus. Together with a team of committed country reporters their combined knowledge and experience will ensure that you gain as much practical insight and analysis as possible on the developments taking place in this extremely important area of the law.

Description

The European Foreign Affairs Review considers the external posture of the European Union in its relations with the rest of the world. Therefore, the Review focuses on the political, legal and economic aspects of the Union's external relations.

The Review functions as an interdisciplinary medium for the understanding and analysis of foreign affairs issues which are of relevance to the European Union and its Member States on the one hand and its international partners on the other.

The Review aims at meeting the needs of both the academic and the practitioner (government officials throughout the world dealing with EU matters, parliamentarians, EU officials, officials of international organizations, executives of multinational corporations, specialized journalists and policy-makers in general). In doing so the Review provides a public forum for the discussion and development of European external policy interests and strategies, addressing issues from the points of view of political science and policy-making, law or economics. These issues are discussed by authors drawn from around the world while maintaining a European focus.

Authors should ensure that their contributions will be apparent also to readers outside their specific expertise. Articles may deal with general policy questions as well as with more specialized topics.

Description

European Public Law is an English language journal edited at the School of Law and Politics, Hull University. The journal is a forum for the discussion of issues in the development of public law in a European context. The journal traces the public law of the Member States as it is shaped by the law of the European Union as well as by the Council of Europe's European Convention on Human Rights.

The subject area is given a broad interpretation and includes European Union Law and European Convention on Human Rights Law and Public Law, the Public Law of European States and other jurisdictions where relevant, including those jurisdictions which have been influenced by European legal systems and comparative public law. No particular approach or methodology is favoured, but in order to ensure work of a high academic standard all articles will be refereed by assessors with established reputations in the subject area.

European Public Law provides a detailed analysis of constitutional and administrative law throughout the phases of European integration and legal development. In its high-quality articles, authorities in the field investigate the extent to which the separate systems of public law in each Member State are, notwithstanding their distinct historical and cultural backgrounds, developing a European Public Law in tandem with the law of the European Union Treaty. The journal also examines the public law systems of new Member States.

Without neglecting the more traditional concerns of constitutional and administrative law, the journal explores the developing constitution of the European Union and the interplay between law and politics. It is concerned with the identification, examination and control of public power as public and private become ever more intertwined. Public law is given a wide interpretation, including the structure of government, judicial review, the conduct of regulatory bodies, redress of grievance through ombudsmen and administrative bodies, protection of human rights and protection against discrimination, openness and transparency, fiscal and monetary policy, and the role of regulation in the contemporary state and the European Union.

European Public Law is indexed/abstracted in European Legal Journals Index, International Bibliography of the Social Sciences, Data Juridica, European Access, Index to Legal Periodicals and Books, RAVE, and EBSCO Legal Source database.

Ranked #14 in the Top journals on European Law

Description

European Review of Private Law discusses the great practical as well as academic importance of national private laws in an integrating Europe, in the face of the current overwhelming emphasis placed on European Union Law.

Cross-border research will become increasingly important as cross-border legal work develops. Hence the need for a law review which focuses on legal developments within a broad European perspective, and which provides a platform for debate on the desirability of a unified private law in Europe, as a complement to economic, monetary and political union.

The European Review of Private Law has an appeal which crosses the academic/practitioner divide. By providing accessible and comparative surveys of legal developments in a number of countries, with summaries of articles and case notes in French, German and English, the Review provides a valuable source of information for lawyers wishing to look for new ideas with which to encourage their courts to innovate in private law.

The impact of European Union Law has made national courts more receptive to importing new conceptual devices and legal techniques directly from foreign case law, without always waiting for the legislature to act.

The European Review of Private Law aims to provide a forum which facilitates the development of European Private Law. It publishes work of interest to academics and practitioners across European boundaries.

Comparative work in any field of private law is welcomed, but a particular emphasis is placed upon the area of patrimonial law. The journal deals especially with comparative case law. Work focusing on one jurisdiction alone is accepted, provided it has a strong cross-border interest.

Description

The well-established journal Intertax continues to serve the readers with up-to-date ground-breaking analysis on international, regional and comparative taxation, targeted to all professionals in the area. For more than four decades, it has provided 12 issues a year, offering comprehensive critical analysis and research on all tax issues with transnational relevance, from both legal and economic angles.

Among the many features it offers in elucidation of transnational tax issues are the following:

- Ground-breaking articles on international taxation, European taxation, and both direct and indirect taxation in countries around the world with transnational repercussion;
- Critical analysis of regional trends in taxation and of multinational tax developments emanating from organizations such as the OECD, the EU, the WTO and the United Nations;
- Special issues focusing on current and controversial tax developments;
- Debates regarding a controversial tax policy issue. These will generally be shorter than typical Intertax articles, and can be submitted either jointly by two invitees or voluntarily;
- Notes on topical tax developments, as well as case notes on relevant court decisions on international and EU tax issues; and
- Literature reviews (including books and groundbreaking papers).

All articles are submitted to a rigorous anonymous peer review process prior to acceptance for publication. Intertax is supported by editorial and advisory board members with the highest international reputation.

Academics, tax attorneys, practitioners (litigation and transactional) in areas where international tax issues are a concern, will all appreciate this preeminent review's authoritative, thought provoking and reliable content, always-timely focused on important developments.

The leading authority in the field of international trade law

Description

Far and away the most thought-provoking and informative journal in its field, the Journal of World Trade sets the agenda for both scholarship and policy initiatives in this most critical area of international relations. It is the only journal which deals authoritatively with the most crucial issues affecting world trade today.

With penetrating, in-depth analysis, the Journal examines the relationship between the separate and interconnected regional and global integration processes stemming from today's challenging multilateral trading structure. The operation of the North American Free Trade Agreement, the expansion of the European integration process, and especially the ongoing development of the World Trade Organization have each raised complex questions that cut across many disciplines: economic, political, social and legal. The constant evolution of the international trading system, changes in production and distribution technologies, and demands by individuals for progress in the sphere of social welfare all heighten the need for this platform for the creative consideration of the various trends in world trade.

The Journal of World Trade fills this need, focusing on multilateral, regional, and bilateral trade negotiations, on various anti-dumping and unfair trade practices issues, and on the endless succession of vital new issues that arise constantly in this turbulent field of activity. The approach is consistently multidisciplinary.

Scholars, government officials, and negotiators turn to the Journal of World Trade when they seek to expose ground-breaking theses, to make important policy statements, to or offer in-depth analysis and discussion of delicate trade issues.

Description

Legal Issues of Economic Integration publishes scholarly and thought provoking articles on European Union, WTO and other international economic law subjects from regarded academics and international practitioners. It includes commentaries on selected European Court of Justice and WTO cases, and reviews on books dealing with the law of economic integration and economic organisations.

Legal Issues provides an academic forum for the discussion of the legal choices that are raised by the processes of economic integration and globalisation. It examines the European Union as well as other regional economic systems, and draws developments into the larger context of the World Trade Organisation and other international economic organisations.

Published four times each year, the journal's sophisticated and scholarly articles make Legal Issues of Economic Integration essential reading for academics, practitioners, and officials from governments and organisations concerned with European and international economic law developments. The journal provides a process of peer review for articles. Determinations regarding publication are made by academic staff of the University and outside experts.
